

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of optimization is utilized in a distributed environment. The method includes receiving a request and retrieving a plurality of services associated with the request. The method also includes packaging the plurality of services into a message object with data 5 associated with the request and transmitting the message object to a first service of the plurality of services.